Nova Scotia Announces Reopening Plan

And COVID-19 Testing At Halifax Airport

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada, 01.06.2021, 16:17 Time

USPA NEWS - "This wave is being crushed in almost record time when you look at what's happening across the country. How? Because we locked down quickly and decisively." ~ Premier Iain Rankin

During last Friday's COVID-19 media briefing Nova Scotia Premier Iain Rankin and the chief medical officer of Nova Scotia Dr. Robert Strang announced a cautious reopening plan for the province. This will be a 5 phase plan allowing Nova Scotians to enjoy the summer while the population continues to get both doses of the vaccine which will provide the best immunity against the virus.

Unlike other provinces, Premier Rankin would not commit to specific dates for certain restrictions to be lifted. Advancement will be "based on data, not dates."

Dr. Robert Strang said, "Each phase could take as little as two weeks to complete. But if the province fails to reach its targets or infections spike, each phase could take up to four weeks."

On Friday May 28, Under Phase 1 of the reopening plan, restrictions on travel within Nova Scotia were lifted with the exception of non-essential travel in and out of the Cape Breton Regional Municipality and much of the Halifax region because of community spread of the COVID-19 virus in those areas.

UPDATE As of Monday May 31st, The Premier has announced that all students will be returning to school this week including schools in HRM and CBRM. Also updated, is that as of June 1st, there will no longer be any restrictions on travel within Nova Scotia.

The following is a list of restrictions which will be eased as of Wednesday June 2nd at 0800: (List as posted on novascotia.ca)
